Your AI check: six questions for any AI task

Whenever a task depends on an AI answer (a client reply, a document summary, a number), run these six questions before it goes anywhere. Each one is something you just saw.

1 What am I giving it?

Take out client names, account numbers and personal details before you paste. Once it's in the chat, it has left your desk.

You'll see this one in Ex 9.

2 Does every fact exist?

Any rule, circular, date or number must trace back to a source you can open. Click the citation. No source, no use.

Record date: 6 Nov 2026

Amount: Rs 4,500, no mention of tax

3 What's not there?

Look for what the AI filled in that the document never said: a payment date, an ISIN, a clean answer to an open question.

Payment date: Gave an exact payment date

Fields extracted: Got 9 of 10

4 Does it contradict itself?

Two codes, two dates, "recommended" vs "declared". The AI often smooths conflicts over instead of flagging them.

Problems found: Found 3 of 4 + the bonus

5 Is it doing something only a person should?

Bank changes, payments, approvals and promises to a client stay with a person, however it's asked.

Condition: Said it depends on shareholder approval at the AGM

6 Who signs off?

A named person reads it before it reaches a client or a system, and can say why it was right.
